Smaller PCS units, usually in the range of a few kW to around 15 kW, are common in home-based energy storage solutions. These systems pair effectively with rooftop solar panels: the PCS inverts DC power from solar modules to AC for household use, stores any surplus in the battery, and provides backup power in case of outages.

A key component of modular energy storage is the Power Conversion System (PCS). The PCS includes bi-directional inverters that convert between AC (alternating current) and DC (direct current) power. This allows the system to both charge from external sources, like the grid or on-site generators, and discharge to support on-site loads.

PVMars lists the costs of 1mwh-3mwh energy storage system (ESS) with solar here (lithium battery design). The price unit is each watt/hour, total price is calculated as:  $0.2 \text{ US$} * \dots$

This allows for the integration of battery storage with the electricity grid or other power systems that usually operate on AC. #### Functions of PCS in a BESS System: 1. DC to AC Conversion (Inverter Mode): When the stored DC energy in the battery needs to be supplied to the grid or a load, the PCS converts it into AC. 2.
